Ruin For Sale in Santa Catarina Fonte do Bispo in Santa Catarina Fonte do Bispo, Tavira

A south facing ruin for sale found in Santa Catarina da Fonte do Bispo, which is located between São Brás and Tavira in East Algarve.

Situated on a small mountain in a quiet area, this property offers both mountain and sea views. Comprised of 470m², there is a possibility to build a brand new villa covering 300m² including a basement and swimming pool. With water pipes, lights and telephone already installed, the design is completely up to you - providing a fantastic opportunity to get your hands stuck into a new project and style you home the way you want.

São Brás de Alportel is just a short six minute drive away which is where you can find all the local amenities including supermarkets, bars and restaurants. The stunning beaches of Tavira are slightly further away along with Ria Formosa Natural Park, both of which offer brilliant days out as well as a true Algarvian experience.

São Brás de Alportel was an ancient settlement in Roman times and later inhabited by the Moors, hence the Moorish influences across the buildings in the main town. Much of its wealth originated from cork production, being the biggest cork producing center in the country in the beginning of the 20th century, it was made into a municipality due to the little towns huge economic importance. Over the years cork production moved onto other areas in the country, leaving behind a reliant touristic base that encourages arts and crafts passed on from generation to generation.
